Weak Opening Would Hurt

Ira Rubin and Philip Feldesman, who finished first in the trials for the American team, are the one pair on the team who believe in sound opening bids.

The sound opening bid theory worked out well for them when Rubin passed with the East hand. South opened with one no-trump and when this was passed back to Rubin, he elected to double. South would have been well advised to run out to two clubs but he stood by his guns and Feldesman was delighted to let the double stand.

Phil did not want to lead from strength, and selected the apparently unfortunate opening bid of the nine of clubs.

This lead looked mighty good to South and he proceeded to run off his five club tricks to start proceedings. It was up to Phil and Ira to discard well, and they surely did.

Phil dropped the four and six of diamonds in order, while Ira let go the deuce of diamonds, five of spades and four of hearts in order. Now when declarer led out his king of diamonds, Ira took the trick with his ace and led the deuce of hearts. Phil cashed his king and queen and led his last heart, whereupon Ira collected two more heart tricks. South had to discard one of his spades on the last heart and Ira's jack of spades lead gave Phil the last three tricks with his ace, queen and nine.

The score of plus 300 for setting one no-trump two tricks was worth five International Match Points to the eventual winners.

Stage Set for Decision on the Buffalo

By GORDON BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stage is about set for a struggle over whether Congress should authorize the controversial $55 million Gilbert dam on the Buffalo River in Arkansas.

The battle will be fought before Public Works committees of the House and Senate.

Leading the fight for authorization of the dam will be Rep. James W. Trimble, D-Ark., long an advocate of development of the Buffalo River.

Arrayed against him is a militant group of nature lovers and fishermen, Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall, and Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas.

Principal point of contention is the argument of the nature lovers, fishermen and Udall that construction of the dam will ruin the stream for float-fishing, that the river should be preserved in its natural state.

The proposal has been a lively issue for years.

Some 20 years ago Congress authorized construction of the Lone Rock dam on the lower Buffalo as part of a program to control floods on the White River. Most of the other dams on the White River and its tributaries have since been built.

Trimble, who supported the Buffalo program at the time, later asked that Gilbert Dam be authorized for the Lone Rock dam. He got the proposal in a couple of bills during the Eisenhower Administration but President Eisenhower vetoed the bills since he objected to the power proposals, among other projects, in the bills.

Army Engineers made a new survey. As a result district and division engineers and the Board of Rivers and Harbors recommended construction of Gilbert dam and deauthorization of Lone Rock.

The deauthorization recommendation was in deference to Udall's position that the river should be preserved in its natural state. In recent years, there has been more emphasis on preserving wild rivers. Naturalists and fishermen joined in supporting Udall.

Lt. Gen. William F. Cassidy, Chief of Engineers, concurred in the board's recommendations and sent the proposal out for comments by various agencies and the governor.

Gov. Faubus recently came out in opposition to the proposal so his comments will be made a part of the Engineer's report to Congress. So, too, will Udall's adverse report.

The House Public Works Committee probably will hear the case first. This, of course, assumes that there will be no change in plans in view of the Viet Nam situation.

So before the committee will be the engineer report and the adverse comments. Judging from similar hearings in the past, a big crowd of supporters and opponents will be on hand to offer their views.

The Army Engineer report said that actually both the Gilbert and Lone Rock dams were needed for full development of the Buffalo but that in view of Udall's desire to preserve natural streams, construction of Gilbert would provide for a balanced development of the stream.

The Buffalo River traverses a very scenic part of northwestern Arkansas and is a favorite of fishermen who like to float downstream.

The river is about 150 miles long. The dam would be built about 50 miles from its mouth and would impound a reservoir 37 miles long. Above the reservoir would be another 55 miles of the stream.

Trimble contends the river still would be available for float fishing and, in fact, would be improved for that purpose since, with the reservoir, it would be available the year round. At present, he said, the river bed is dry at some spots in the summer.

He will make this point to the committee with pictures he took last summer. He has pictures of himself standing in the dry bed.

He also contends that only some 300 fishermen used the stream for float-fishing last year and that a reservoir would attract many times that number.

Opponents undoubtedly will argue that the dam and reservoir will spoil the stream as a natural wild river and that, while the stream may be low in dry weather, it can't be used by float fishermen the rest of the year.

Buccaneers

The term "buccaneer" originated in Haiti, where early settlers used a process called "buccan"—smoking and drying—for preserving their meat and pirates used this method to stock their ships for long voyages.

Checkers

The game of checkers has been played in Europe since the 1500s, being developed from the move of the queen in chess. The original name of the game was "dama."

Arkansans in touch with the situation say that while Trimble has the support of the area in which the dam would be built, sentiment elsewhere in the state appears to be against the proposal. Faubus' opposition would tend to bear this out. The feeling here is that the governor took some soundings over the state before coming out against the dam.

So Trimble may be in for an uphill fight.

"ASTHMA"

Asthma is a condition of excessive constriction of the air passages into the lungs and congestion of the mucous membrane lining. These tubes — tiny nerve fibers relay telegraphic messages from the brain to these tissues causing the bronchial tubes to relax and contract, changing the diameter of the air passage to the varying needs. Mucous secretions are also regulated by this nerve mechanism.

Chiropractic adjustment regulates and normalizes the nerve supply to the bronchial tubes by removing the cause in the nervous system, the symptoms of Asthma vanish.

Chicken Plant Is Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman said Monday that the Economic Development Administration has rejected loan applications totaling $2.6 million to build a chicken processing complex in New Castle, Pa. The applications were opposed by chicken producing states, including Arkansas, on the ground that the broiler industry is already plagued by overproduction.

Rep. Harold D. Cooley, D-N.C., reported the rejection and said he was glad the proposal had been turned down. He said as a part of any antipollution program, the New Castle proposal would merely have shifted poverty from one area to another.

2nd Session May Be Help to Business

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The second session of the 89th Congress could mean even more in dollars and cents to American business than did the action-packed first session.

The reason is that most of the issues in the session that opened this week are closely tied to financial and economic decisions. Most of the social and legal questions were dealt with last year.

Current issues range from how much money will be appropriated for the Viet Nam war to what industries and companies will get the new defense orders and which ones will be cut back in payments by the U.S. Treasury. The type of war to be waged in Viet Nam will determine much of the spending — and what company and what community gets or loses orders.

The issues also include how the new money will be raised through increased tax collections or by selling a lot more Treasury securities. Basic to this is the monetary question of what rate of interest the Treasury will be allowed to pay when it borrows.

There's a 4 1/2 per cent ceiling on what it can pay on bond issues, although the going interest rate in the money markets is well above that today. The Treasury has to issue short-term notes and bills to which the ceiling doesn't apply. It is paying well above 4 1/2 per cent.

Many communities and corporations have an interest in the "Great Society" programs under way, beyond the central issue of what they will do for the general welfare. Congress may be asked to decide whether such programs, with their large outlays of cash for goods and services, are to be continued at the present rate, at a reduced one, or expanded as called for in the original time schedule.

Business also will be closely watching moves under way in this session of Congress to make more definite and restrictive the controls over pricing which the administration has been confining largely to persuasion or to threats of retaliatory moves by the government. The administration wants to hold basic prices down if possible as the economy heats up and nears the point where inflation could take off on a dangerous ride.

One big prop of the economy today is the boom in spending by business for new plant and equipment. Any tax changes could affect this. Some even wonder if Congress might rescind the 7 per cent depreciation allowance for tax purposes originally voted to encourage the buying of new equipment.

The government's stockpile of strategic materials, and how to get rid of some of the surpluses, will be up for debate. Business has a vital stake in this as it could affect prices and even trim production of some items.

And government's relations with labor through guidelines on holding down wage increases it considers inflationary also is likely to come before Congress along with the guidelines on price increases.

Too Old For Christmas Cards

Dear Helen: Every year since I was born my parents have sent out photographic Christmas cards, with the family posed in unusual ways. Us kids have been looking out of stockings, or our heads hanging in Christmas ornaments or holding candles on stairways — almost everything. They even dressed me and my kid brother up as Father Time and the bare New Year, once, which got me hooted.

But this year was the livin' end, and I told my folks so! They got us into new pajamas and had us sprawled all over the floor in front of the tree.

Helen, I'm 16 and six feet tall. None of the guys wear pajamas — if you admit YOU do, it's worse than saying you take ballet.

I had to do it because they said I couldn't use the car if I pulled out, but would you please tell all parents that if they want family Christmas cards, don't get cute. Just line us up in clothes and snap the shutter!

— In Hiding.

Dear In: Consider the matter! — H.

Personal to "Can't Please everybody": Of course you can't settle for doing the things that will make you pleased with (and proud of) yourself.

If you need proof that you can't win 'em all (because everyone hates and sees you differently) try this experiment: Make a simple statement — something like "Hey, guess what I hit the honor roll!" — to ten people. You'll probably get at least five totally different reactions: everything from sincere pleasure through jealousy and suspicion, to "If you don't watch out you'll work yourself into a nervous breakdown."

Being modest, you probably wouldn't say this, but it's a good example. Anyone who achieves can't always please. Don't waste time worrying about it. — H.

Dear Helen: I've been going with this boy for two years. Three weeks ago we broke up because he said he didn't love me. A week later I found I was expecting his baby. I am still very much in love with him. When I told him about the baby, he was very upset, but said he would marry me.

There's another boy who knows about this and he wants to marry me right away to give the baby a name. He says he's loved me right along. He'd be a wonderful father. He has a good job. He's 19, I'm 16.

I'll have to tell my parents soon, and I'd like to tell them something definite. I don't love the second boy, but the boy's father thinks this might be a good solution if I married him. Which should I choose? — N. B.P.

Dear N: Neither! You certainly don't want an immature, reluctant, unloving, "take the easy way out" husband, (first boy), nor does the second boy — who is more noble than wise — want an immature, reluctant, unloving, "take the easy way out" wife!

Your parents will stand by you, and I think they'll agree with counselors at the maternity home: it's better to give your baby up than to settle for a worthless marriage. — "

Vatican to Try Hard for Peace

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said today he was willing "to attempt any means, even beyond usual protocol" to achieve a just peace among nations.

The Pope made the statement, renewing his dramatic personal campaign for peace in Viet Nam, to diplomats from 55 countries. They were gathered in the Vatican's Consistorial Hall to give him their New Year's greetings.

The pontiff did not explain what additional steps he proposed to take since his telegraphed New Year's pleas for negotiation to Moscow, Peking, Hanoi and Saigon.

"God is our witness that we are ready, on our part, to attempt any means, even beyond usual protocol forms, at any time that we think the (Roman Catholic) Church can usefully bring to the leaders (of governments) the weight of its moral authority in order to maintain and promote a just peace among men and among peoples," the Pope said.

The Pope said this was a "doubtless temporal task" but "is undertaken and carried out through means appropriate to our function, and for a spiritual aim: the health of society and the true well being of mankind."

Pope Paul said the experience of the past years confirmed that the Church's mission of peace and its activity in modern life "does not fall on indifference." "This mission," he said, "is awaited and heard in large areas." The Pope said the proof of this was the large echo from his speech to the United Nations last October and "more recently our interventions in favor of peace in Viet Nam."

He was referring to his New Year's appeals telegraphed to Red Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung, Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny and President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam and Nguyen Van Thieu, the chief of state of South Viet Nam.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

High Altitude Increases Sun Reflection Damage

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Is there such a thing as snowblindness? Is it serious?

A—Exposure of the retina to the rays of the sun reflected by snow will cause a sunspot (blind spot) due to exhaustion of certain chemicals in the retina. The same effect is produced by exposure to the direct rays of the sun as in watching an eclipse, exposure to the light of an electric arc welder or exposure to an ultraviolet lamp of the ozone-emitting type.

A certain amount of conjunctivitis (pink eye) is usually associated with this condition. The severity of the injury depends on the duration of the exposure and its intensity. The latter depends on the amount of atmosphere through which the sun's rays travel—more severe if you are at a high altitude or when the sun is directly overhead. Thus the blind spot may clear up in a few minutes or it may be permanent.

Q—Do bleeding piles ever turn into cancer? Why would they suddenly stop bleeding after bleeding off and on for eight years?

A—Both cancer near the outlet of the bowel and piles may be associated with blood in the stools, but piles do not predispose to cancer or vice versa. If piles that have been bleeding for a long time stop bleeding it may be because clots inside the hemorrhoids have turned to scar tissue or because you are having softer stools than formerly.

Q—An X-ray of my upper bowel shows polyps. Is there any way to get rid of them without an operation?

A—If your polyps are believed to be cancerous, or precancerous, they should be removed without delay. Most polyps in the digestive tract are benign and require no treatment unless they become so large as to obstruct the passage of the digesting food. There is no other way to get rid of them, however, than by surgical removal.

Q—What is encephalitis? Is it completely curable? Would pregnancy make it worse?

A—Encephalitis — also called brain fever or sleeping sickness—is an infectious disease that is usually caused by a virus. No treatment is known but about 95 per cent of the victims recover. Recovery may be complete or there may be residual effects such as weakness of the upper eyelids, mental impairment or antisocial trends that were not present before the disease. Pregnancy would not necessarily make it worse but the mother's encephalitis might harm the fetus.

Wildcats Score One Point But It Was Enough

By ED SCHUYLER JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

Kentucky's unbeaten, second-ranked Wildcats scored only one point in an overtime period. It turned out to be the biggest point of their basketball season.

Tied 60-60 at the end of regulation time, Kentucky and Georgia each converted single foul shots to force the game into a second extra period in which Kentucky outscored the Bulldogs 8-4 for a 69-65 victory Monday night.

Two other members of The Associated Press' Top Ten saw action and recorded victories—No. 3 Vanderbilt, 106-58 over Mississippi and No. 10 Kansas, 89-68 over Oklahoma.

Kentucky started out at Athens, Ga., as if it would have an easy time in running its record to 11-0, building a 34-21 halftime margin. But Georgia fought back and sent the game into overtime on Frank Harscher's basket at the buzzer.

The Wildcats' Louie Dampier, who scored 23 points, sank one foul shot but missed a second in the first overtime. The one enough to keep the Wildcats in the game as the only point the Bulldogs could put on the board in the period was a foul shot by Harscher.

In the second overtime, Kentucky's Pat Riley opened with a basket, but Georgia came back with two free throws by Jerry Waller, who also finished with 23. The Wildcats then went ahead to stay on a pair of foul shots by Cliff Berger and Tommy Kron's field goal.

Big Clyde Lee scored 29 points and snared 28 rebounds in Vanderbilt's easy victory over Mississippi at Nashville, Tenn.

Another big man, Kansas' Walt Wesley, netted 27 points and blocked seven shots in the Jayhawks' defeat of Oklahoma at Lawrence, Kan.

Iowa, who dropped out of the Top Ten after losing 69-68 to Wisconsin Saturday, got back on the right track with 70-58 triumph over Northwestern.

Duke Signs First Negro Griddier

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP)—Allen Parks, a 6-foot-2, 225-pound tackle and academic whiz at Lynchburg's Dunbar High School, has become the first Negro to sign a football grant-in-aid with Duke University.

Parks, who plans to study law, announced Monday night he has accepted the Durham, N.C., university's offer of a four-year athletic scholarship. Duke officials said they were greatly pleased.

Present Owners to Keep Celtics

BOSTON (AP)—Jack Waldron, president of the Boston Celtics, says that the National Basketball Association club will remain in Boston under present ownership.

"We deny it categorically," Waldron said Monday night in commenting on a report that he and board chairman Marvin Katter are attempting to sell the NBA champions.

Teachers Stays Right in Running

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas State Teachers stayed right behind the conference leader with an 89-67 victory over arch rival Arkansas Tech Monday night in Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference basketball at Russellville.

Harding used free throws to defeat College of the Ozarks 74-69 in another AIC game Monday night.

ASTC trailed Tech midway through the first half, but the Wonder Boys went scoreless for almost 6 minutes and the Bears took the lead. Danny Wood had 14 points for the winners and Jerry Gatling led Tech with 18.

The victory gave the Bears an 8-1 AIC mark, while Southern State hopes to push its mark to 9-0 against Ouachita tonight.

Ozarks outscored Harding from the field by six points, but the Bears got 22 of 33 free throws and the Mountaineers had 11 of 14. Harding's Don Medley was high with 24 points and Richard Fyland had 23 for Ozarks.

Duke Cagers Remain Tops in the Nation

By BEN OLAN, Associated Press Sports Writer

The streaking Duke Blue Devils held onto first place in the Associated Press basketball poll today and Kansas replaced Iowa in the major-college Top Ten.

Duke's margin over second-place Kentucky was trimmed considerably, though. The Blue Devils, winners of nine in a row for an 11-1 mark, collected 32 first-place votes and 405 points in the balloting by 44 regional experts.

Kentucky, unbeaten in 10 games, trails by only 40 points, 50 less than a week ago. The Wildcats polled eight votes for the No. 1 position and 365 points in the latest balloting based on games through last Saturday.

Duke and Kentucky set the pattern for the other teams in last week's Top Ten, each winning twice.

Kansas whipped Colorado 69-55 and Iowa State 82-65 for an 11-2 mark and moved into 10th place.

Duke defeated Penn State 83-58 and North Carolina 88-74 while Kentucky defeated St. Louis 80-70 and Florida 78-64.

Hogs Hope to Defeat Ags at Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Arkansas Razorbacks, who beat pre-season favorite Texas Tech last Saturday night 74-65, challenge front-running Texas A&M tonight in a South-west Conference basketball game at College Station.

The Hogs, presently deadlocked with five other teams for second place with a 1-1 record after the first week of conference activity will have to contend with the hot-shooting Aggies and attempt to overcome the A&M home court jinx. The Aggies don't lose often at College Station.

Other games tonight are winless Rice against Texas Christian at Fort Worth and Baylor against Texas at Austin.

Other teams deadlocked with Arkansas for second place are Southern Methodist, Texas Tech, Texas, Baylor and TCU.

Two day games and a night non-conference game are scheduled Saturday. Texas A&M will play Baylor at Waco before the television cameras, Texas tangles with Arkansas at Fayetteville in another matinee attraction, and Texas Tech is host to Midwestern of Wichita Falls in a non-conference game.

Probation on Porks Lifted, Houston Hit

By BOB GREEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The University of Houston, stunned with a three-year probation—University of Houston, stunned with a three-year probation—one of the longest in NCAA history—expressed regret today. University officials said they'd try to see that it didn't happen again.

Dr. Frank L. Stovall, chairman of the university's athletic board, and Athletic Director, Harry Fouke said they "deeply regret that violations have occurred and have taken appropriate steps to make certain that violations do not occur in the future."

Their joint statement came after the National Collegiate Athletic Association had prohibited the school's football teams from participating in postseason bowl games or appearing on NCAA-sponsored telecasts for three years.

The school was found guilty of violations on three counts of financial aid to athletes, five of illegal recruiting and one of out-of-season football practice. All took place between 1962 and 1965.

"These are serious violations," said Art Bergstrom, NCAA assistant director. "The seriousness of them is reflected in the type of penalty."

The violation were caused by "some members of the coaching staff and by several well-intentioned but somewhat overzealous friends of the University of Houston," Dr. Stovall and Fouke said in their statement.

In other major developments at the NCAA convention which opened here Monday:

1. The rules committee of the Football Coaches Association overwhelmingly approved the unlimited substitution rule and asked that the rule makers leave the game alone for two or three years.

2. The College Baseball Coaches Association named Bobby Winkles of Arizona St. coach of the year. It also inducted 18 former coaches into the Collegiate Baseball Hall of Fame.

3. The NCAA Council lifted a one-year probation from Arkansas and West Texas State and restored them to full membership.

4. The NCAA Extra Events Committee heard requests for four new bowl games from groups in Tampa, Fla., Phoenix, Ariz.; Raleigh, N.C., and Atlanta, Ga.

TERRORISTS AT WORK—Stepped-up Viet Cong bombings in Saigon made a shambles of a suburban South Vietnamese national police headquarters, injuring one policeman and nine civilians, including three children. Another attempt was foiled when two terrorists were apprehended on their way to bomb an American officers' billet.

EXPO UNIFORMS—Three hostesses for Montreal's coming World Exhibition, Expo, model uniforms to be worn by several hundred young ladies during the six-month long 1967 event. Deirdre McIlwraith, 26, of Ottawa, left, wears a raincoat and hood for rainy days. Sunny weather will bring out the girls in the cool outfit in light blue modeled by Danielle Touchette, 21, of Montreal, center. Sonia Saumier, 26, also of Montreal, wears the same outfit with suit jacket. The beret is blue, navy and white.

ANTARCTIC ACTIVITY—Winter is getting underway in earnest for Americans at home, but in Antarctica summer is just coming in and U.S. scientific teams in south polar regions are again busy with research programs. Scene above is the wind-swept Ross Ice Shelf. Glaciologists patrol the snowy wide-open spaces in motor toboggans to study ice movement and snow accumulation, part of an effort to determine whether Antarctica's vast ice cap is increasing or decreasing in size.

ALL-WEATHER SPORT—The heavy coat and warm hat are necessary for this Moscow swimming instructor, checking the progress of his students in a steaming outdoor pool. The heated pool is a great favorite with citizens of the Soviet capital throughout the year.

JOYOUS JUMPER—Patrizia Valturri, 17, has good reason for jumping with joy. The young ballerina has been selected at Treviso, Italy, for the top role in a new Italian film, "The Birds, the Bees and the Italians."

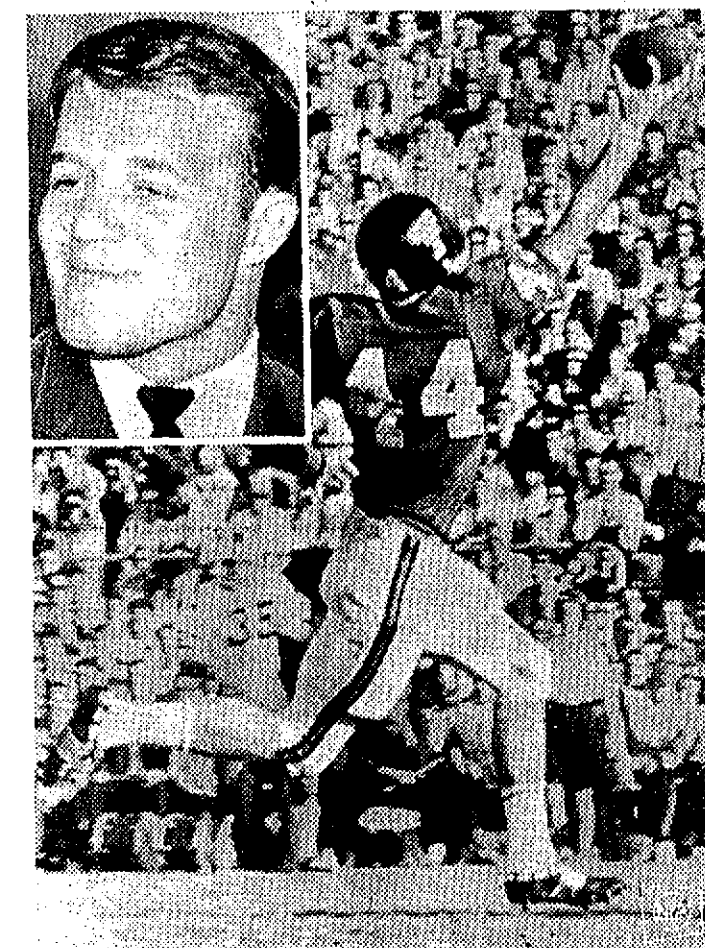

GIVING IT A TRY—The impact of U.S. ways on Viet Nam reaches far. Hamburger stands and pizza palaces blossom in Saigon, and here a six-year-old boy tries out an American cigarette, evidently finding it to his liking.

PRISON VACANCIES—After keeping pace with the rate of national population growth for almost 15 years, the nation's prison population began to drop off in 1961-62. The decline started later in federal prisons but has been steeper there than in the state institutions.

PACK PRACTICE—In full astronaut garb, Maj. Edward G. Givens, Air Force project officer at Dallas, Tex., tries on the Astronaut Maneuvering Unit back pack to be tried out in advanced "space walk" experiments during the Gemini-9 orbital flight this year.

BULL MARKET—One of the reasons the Green Bay Packers paid a reported $600,000 for back Donny Anderson of Texas Tech is that he catches passes like this. The sum is believed the largest ever paid to a college football player.

Communist World in New Dispute

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Communist world found itself embroiled today in a new and bitter dispute which could have far-reaching repercussions.

The new controversy centers around a charge by Communist China that Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro lied in saying Peking refused to carry out a plan to barter rice for Cuban sugar.

But deeper than a trade dispute is the real cause of the controversy - the Peking-Moscow struggle for leadership of the Communist world and the timing of the current disagreement.

One immediate effect of the Peking-Havana quarrel could be an internal struggle at the three-continent "solidarity" conference now under way in Havana. Some said it might produce a walkout of Red China's delegation which has found the conference heavily weighted in favor of the Soviet line.

Moscow bolsters Castro's regime with economic and military aid estimated at $1 million a day.

The timing of the dispute is significant. It was begun by Castro on the eve of the Asia Africa-Latin American meeting. He announced that his government and Red China found themselves in disagreement on a plan under which China would send rice to Cuba in exchange for sugar.

The Peking government's action has caused a cut from six to three pounds per month in the ration of rice in Cuba, where rice is a major staple of the diet.

Now the Peking government has issued a blistering statement about Castro's declaration. Stripped of its diplomatic niceties, Peking says in effect:

1. Castro is a liar.

2. Castro violated the norms of international good manners in speaking out publicly about negotiations then under way, particularly since Cuba has an official mission now in Peking to present his viewpoint.

3. Castro's timing in attacking a sister nation on the eve of the Havana conference gives broad reasons to suspect the sincerity of his motives.

Observers here are watching the new controversy closely. They wonder if North Viet Nam's Hanol regime will be able to keep on playing it cozy with both Moscow and Peking as Castro tried to do. A high-level Soviet delegation is now in Hanol talking things over with government leaders.

WASHINGTON (AP) - It would be a pleasure to be able to report that the weekend show were a joy - that Sammy Davis' premiere program was a smash, that Jackie Gleason's pocket musical was inventive and tuneful, and that "The World of the Teen-Ager" illuminated a problem.

It would be a pleasure but it wouldn't be quite true.

Taking first things first, there was NBC's "Sammy Davis Jr. Show" Friday night. The producers thought of almost everything - dramatic and colorful sets, attractive musical arrangements, Sammy serving up samples of the things he does well. There was even the extraordinary sight of Elizabeth and Richard Burton singing a slightly off-key duet.

Apparently, however, they overlooked the need for word-smiths. Davis was given the dullest sort of lines, mostly consisting of "Gee whiz, folks, I'm so excited to have my own show."

Even Mrs. Burton's daring décolletage failed to divert some of us from the famine of dialogue.

Davis, the singer, dancer and impressionist, was impressive but Davis, the host, was a bore.

It was pleasant to have three of the old "Honeymooners" gang back together again on CBS Saturday night. Trixie, the fourth member, was alleged to be visiting her mother in New Jersey. But Alice, Ed Norton and Ralph Kramden were back in that basic Brooklyn flat.

But once there, they couldn't seem to decide whether they were doing a comedy sketch or a musical. The songs were draped on the comedy sketch like ornaments on a Christmas tree. Thus the plot would roar along with Ralph constantly threatening to land one on Alice or Ed. Then there would be a pause and one or another would walk up to the camera and sing a little song.

The free-wheeling story about adopting a baby may bring some fiery complaints from adoption agencies and Jackie certainly overplayed his glib emotional scene, weeping over the bassinet. Even so I was fun to have Art Carney, Audrey Meadows and Gleason yelling at each other. Some of the slight times were catchy, if hardly memorable.

According to NBC's special Sunday night, "The World of the Teen-Ager" is a prison where life is dull, adults don't understand them, and the pressures are fierce.

The documentary was made in Lexington, Mass., concentrating the ration of rice in Cuba, where rice is a major staple of the diet.

Mathew Brady, probably the best-known photographer in U.S. history, died alone and forgotten in an alms ward in a New York City hospital. Until the Civil War began he specialized in photographing famous persons, especially presidents of the United States. But in covering the Civil War in all its phases he spent his entire fortune of $100,000 and went bankrupt. Some years later Congress voted him a payment of $25,000 but he was already financially ruined.

Kabi Plays Beethoven for Small Fry

By KELLY SMITH

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW (AP) — Pour the ingredients of a concert pianist into a mother and you have Kabi Laretei—a dashing, exuberant Swedish housewife who travels the world over playing Beethoven for 6-year-olds.

Her concerts make tots sit up straight, clap and listen with eager comments to classical music which puts their parents to sleep.

So impressed with her talent was President Johnson that she was invited to entertain underprivileged children at the White House Christmas party this year.

"Imagine entertaining kids at a party with a piano player!" booted one skeptic. "But you should see the kids," came the answer.

"It's my mission," says Miss Laretei, "to show children music is not difficult to enjoy. Children have strong respect for classical music."

Her concerts include questions and answers, stories, participation, such as clapping, and visual illustrations—such as a glittering diamond brooch to show trills, or a mobile of birds with Griger's "Little Birds."

"It's gambling. I never know beforehand how it will turn out," she says.

she says, "I was very surprised to find children like soft, romantic music best."

In private life, she's the wife of Swedish movie producer-director Ingmar Bergman, runs a large villa outside Stockholm and is the mother of Linda, 10, and Daniel, 3.

Can you imagine a housewife getting in four hours of piano practice each day? "It isn't easy," she says, "it takes perfect organization."

As a mother, Miss Laretei has strong opinions on children's music lessons.

"I won't let my daughter take lessons until I see that she wants to, really wants to. Unless she's enthused, it's no good. My son likes to say, 'I want to practice' and he sits at the piano with me."

"People make children work at music. It should not be work. Music is natural for children. They must enjoy it. They must see that music is the same kind of world they live in—water, forests, birds, people."

Adults would benefit from her concerts too, she thinks.

"Many concert-goers don't know what it's all about. Everyone goes and sits and looks and plays the game."

"I wish I could start every concert saying: 'Relax and listen. Don't think there's something to understand. Don't think you're stupid if you think of the grocery list. Think of whatever you choose—and enjoy it.'

As she talks, her blue-eyes sparkle and her hands move and dives in circles and squares as she explains her music.

She is a professional, she says, and "I don't play music when I'm sad or for relaxation. Music is my work. For you, it is relaxation."

And if all housewives and mothers listened to more music, they'd be happier? "Oh yes!" she says.

Amateurs Enter Spy Business

THE BILLION DOLLAR BRAIN. By Len Deighton. Putnam. $4.95.

Once again Deighton's anonymous, world-weary and not too brash secret agent, attached to a small unit of British intelligence, tells us his adventures.

Some of the characters are familiar, having appeared in the earlier "Funeral in Berlin"—the agent's boss Dawlish, whose quick, sometimes impatient mind operates behind a quiet facade of nonchalance; and Col. Stok, the blunt, harsh but not too unfriendly head of a Russian intelligence section.

This time the scenes range from London to Helsinki, Leningrad, Riga, New York and Texas.

The problem is the rise of a private spy network—our hero tuts over the dangers that a "bunch of amateurs" can cause among the professionals—operated by a Texas billionaire named Midwinter. He is an extreme right-winger who has an armed force of his own, secret agents bumbling around on the Finnish-Russian border, connections with a handful of fascist-minded British, and a huge underground city of computers under the Texas soil.

(One of the novel's weaknesses is that the computer bit never becomes quite clear. Some of these machines are correlating data about vulnerable industrial and communications spots in Russia; presumably the others are standing in readiness for similar data from other countries.)

Not to give the plot away, our British agent runs into an American he had met before, Harvey Newbegin, and Harvey's activities are at the center of the action.

The present story is not as tightly dramatic as "Funeral in Berlin," not as movie-like as "The Ipcress File."

But it does have the light touch in the midst of mayhem. Deighton is skilled at dialogue filled with sharp bits of repartee, and he manages an engaging grin now and then when he pulls our leg—always the other leg, not the one we expected—with scenes that reach into burlesque. Deighton's hero once again is a smart, nicely human nonsensical-buckler.

Miles A. Smith

A NOVEL FOR THE LADIES

THE TOWER OF KILRAVEN. By Cecily Crowe. Holt, Rinehart. $4.50.

This one is for the ladies. One of those romantic novels with plenty of emotional scenes, in a background that strongly resembles a stage setting.

The heroine is Carlotta Street, a 37-year-old American, recently widowed, who makes a trip to Ireland because that is where her mother's people came from. As a paying guest at Kilraven Castle, she gets involved with some odd people of the Fenn family—old Lady Kilraven; cousin Dermot Fenn, one of those ominous men of suppressed emotion; and Dermot's unpredictable wife Moira. Among the guests there is Dr. Edward Fabret, an American psychiatrist.

The romantic interest brings in both Dermot and Edward, a highly contrasted pair.

There just has to be a mystery, or a ghost, or some dark danger in a novel such as this, and so there is a mysterious development of a highly gothic nature.

But of course it's bound to turn out all right.

TEACHER'S PET COMPUTER

DENVER (AP) — School children, like taxpayers, are fast approaching the day when they'll be prodded by computers if their performance lags.

During a recent seminar of school officials here an anonymous student's grade average was transmitted to a Honeywell computer center in Boston which, seconds later, sent back a prediction of that student's grades for the coming year. The prediction was based on historical grade samplings and numerous analyses stored in the computer memory.

People Of Our Capitol

WASHINGTON: MAGNIFICENT CAPITAL. Text by A. Robert Smith and Eric Sevareid. Photographs by Fred J. Maroon. Doubleday. $14.95.

This is not the routine guidebook of a city. It is not full of statistics and dates and dullness. It is delightful and informative reading, beautifully illustrated with photographs that, like the text, capture the real soul of Washington.

For the photographer, Washington has the reputation of being a cold city, full of gray, square buildings containing musty old file cabinets and dusty, old, bureaucratic people. Of course it isn't true, but it's hard to say so pictorially.

Maroon, a top free lance photographer, presents pictures that sparkle with spontaneity. You see the city at work and play—in the White House, on Capitol Hill or at a downtown discotheque—and are taken on the cocktail and dinner circuit, into the homes of social leaders and diplomats. You get closeups of things which few are privileged to see—the White House Christmas tree, the President's gold table setting or the super secret Air Force Command Post.

The anecdote-laden text introduces you to the people of Washington: the politicians, reporters, lobbyists, beatniks, socialites, diplomats and brass hats.

It is a magnificent book, must reading for anyone who deals with the people in Washington, and recommended for anyone who plans to visit the city or wants to understand what goes on there.

MANY DEAD DRIVERS WERE YOUNG

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Of 293 automobile drivers killed on Australian roads in the three months ended Sept. 30, 116 were aged 17-29, according to a government analysis. Most fatal accidents occurred on straight roads.

Bookshop Owner Says Obscenity Losing Favor

By MILTON MARMOR

LONDON (AP) — Christina Foyle, a charming woman with a shrewd business sense, said in a soft girlish voice:

"We still get sales for dirty books, but I really think they're on the wane now. People want a really good story, something they can settle down with like they could before the war."

Miss Foyle should know. She owns "Foyles", a sprawling shop on London's Charing Cross Road that advertises itself as the "world's greatest bookshop."

There are four million volumes for sale on 30 miles of shelves. "There are fashions in books, just like in other things," she said. "After the Lady Chatterley court case two years ago, anything on sex got big sales. Now good story tellers are coming back."

Then, with pride, she explained that:

"Foyles attracts the book lover. We don't get the sensation searcher." The shop gets 30,000 letters weekly with orders from all over the world.

"You'll never find a book-seller reading a dirty book. It's boring. I don't think even the staff reads them."

She likes biographies. "I read the old books that come in. I also like thrillers, children's books. I like to read about London and about American houses and decorations."

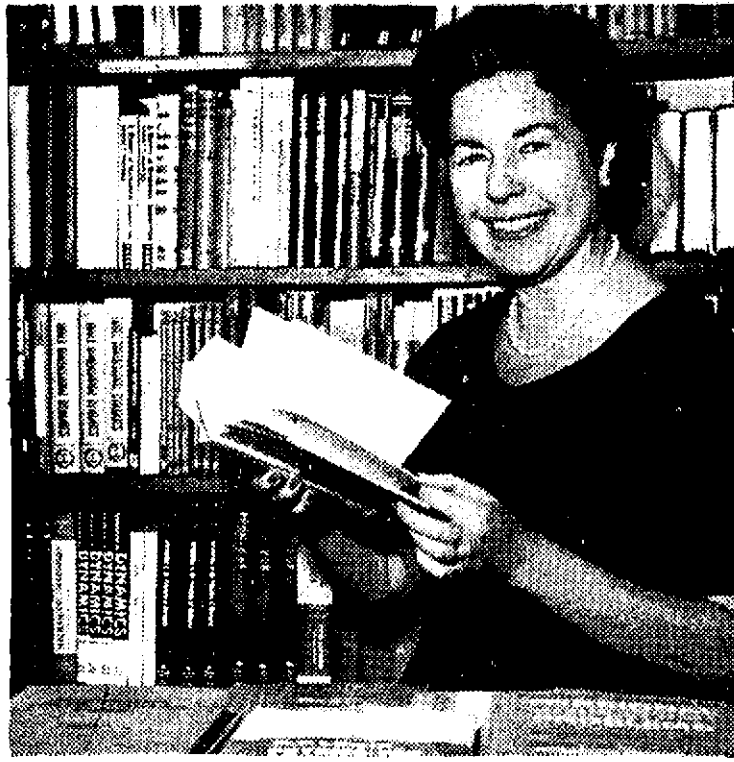

She recalled that during World War II people turned to the classics.

Miss Foyle said many persons come into her shop and stand there reading a book for an hour or so. They leave and come back again at other times to finish the book. It's been going on like that for years.

Television helps the sale of books, she said.

"The other day the BBC had a program about Plato's Symposium. That started a big sale of Plato's work. Even I read it."

Strange things sometimes find their way into books. The commonest finds are money or willis. "Once a widow sold us a book, hollowed out with 1,000 pounds ($2,800) in the center, her late husband's life savings. 'We gave it back, of course,'

FASHION IN BOOKS, TOO... Christina Foyle, owner of the world's largest bookshops, says fashions in books are as changeable as clothes—good stories are coming back, she says, and dirty books are fading.

Save Self When Ship Sinks

LONDON (AP) — A few quick brandies before abandoning a sinking ship may increase a sailor's chances of survival, according to Dr. W.R. Keatinge, professor of medicine at Oxford University.

Dr. Keatinge makes this observation in a report published in the December 1965, "British Medical Journal" on the causes of death after the sinking of the liner "Lakonia" off the Portuguese coast two years ago. He found that up to 113 of the 124 passengers and crewmen who died lost their lives due to hypothermia—the loss of body heat when immersed in cold water.

Almost all the deaths were among the 150 to 200 people left on board the ship after all the lifeboats were filled. These people spent from seven to 15 hours in 63-degree water.

Before fire had forced everyone to abandon the ship, alcoholic drinks were available at the bar, Dr. Keatinge said. One survivor reported having several brandies.

"Alcohol may have helped," he said, "even in substantial amounts, it does not appreciably increase the heat loss of people in cold water though it greatly reduces their discomfort."

Dr. Keatinge found that most of those who died had vomited heavily—presumably from seasickness—increasing the rate of heat loss.

And despite their wearing life jackets, many were drowned by waves after hypothermia had caused helplessness or unconsciousness.

Many wore few or no clothes, although experiments show that clothing can provide considerable insulation against cold water. Many of those thrown into the water mistakenly tried to keep warm by swimming.

Experiments have shown, Dr. Keatinge said, that after 20 minutes in the water, "exercise invariably increases the rate at which body temperature falls."

Finally, the average age of a sample of survivors was 47 years while the average age of a sample of dead passengers was almost 61 years.

"There is evidence that old people have less ability to increase heat production and perhaps to decrease heat loss than younger people do," Dr. Keatinge said.

YOUNG HAMMERSTEIN REWRITING 'ALLEGRO'

NEW YORK (AP) — William Hammerstein, son of the late Oscar Hammerstein II, is rewriting the book of "Allegro," one of the less successful musicals created by his father and Richard Rodgers.

The show is one of three scheduled for summer run at the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam, Conn., where the current Broadway success "Man of La Mancha" was first tried

The Lady Is Boss

OTTAWA (AP) — When Frank Ryan, one of the Ottawa area's most successful businessmen, died last March, his radio station and 100-acre Kilreen Farm were left without a boss—but not for long.

His widow, Kathleen, quickly moved into the driver's seat and hasn't had time to look back since. She is president of CFRA Broadcasting Ltd., and although she describes herself as "little more than a titular head" because the station is run by employees, she plays a definite role.

An early riser, she can be found most weekday mornings in the station's executive offices planning a $100,000 expansion and sorting material for the "notebook" show of Ottawa Valley chit-chat she broadcasts twice weekly.

From the showplace farm, Kay Ryan also exhibits Hackney ponies, prize Aberdeen Angus cattle and Suffolk sheep. She recently drove to victory her 10-year-old Hackney pony, Westridge Charmaine, at the Ottawa Winter Fair. The pony has won 18 grand championships in Canada and the United States.

Mrs. Ryan is a sister of former Mayor Charlotte Whitton and an honors economics graduate of Queens University, Kingston, Ont.

Frank Ryan died just two months after his unsuccessful bid for the Mayor's chair in the 1964 Civic Election. His widow hasn't tried her hand in politics—yet.

Champ Up to Ears In Wool

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Gwen Mathewman, an English housewife, claims a world record for hand knitting by using 1,600 ounces of wool during 1965. Mrs. Mathewman made 36 sweaters, 11 jumpers, 10 baby sets, 22 coats, 25 cardigans (button up sweaters) and four children's suits.

She also made two women's suits, five hats, two doll outfits, two pairs of gloves, five pairs of mittens, five pairs of baby boots, two bed jackets and two pullovers.

The figure of 1,600 ounces surpasses the record she claimed in 1964 when she used 1,508 ounces of wool—entirely with hand needles.

Mrs. Mathewman lives in Featherstone, Yorkshire County, and is the wife of a carpenter and the mother of three boys and a girl.

COMPUTER INPUT

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — A closer man-machine relationship is being sought by Sylvania Electronic Systems, under a $54,000 contract from the Air Force. The company is comparing present hand-operated devices used for feeding information into computers. It will recommend how each—keyboards, light-sensing pencils, electrical writing surfaces—can be used more effectively.

The year-long study will include extensive performance testing by human operators. "Input devices available today can be used more effectively," Dr. James E. Storer said, "if they are properly matched both to the requirements of the job and the capabilities of the operator. Our study is aimed at achieving a closer man-machine relationship."

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Jornal do Brasil reports that American technicians trying to help Brazil improve its tax collection system have set themselves an ambitious goal: to convince the recalcitrant taxpayer that paying taxes is a good thing.

Their main target is going to be professionals who apparently are most loath to declare their income.

The paper says audit of 40 doctors' returns showed that only four declared taxable income. The others claimed to be penniless.

New Machine in Hope Solves an Offset Problem

Being a creature without type the offset system of printing has always posed a special problem in getting up a proof that an advertiser can read and check.

Until now the main source of proofs has been a blue-printing machine, which produced proofs that were legible enough but unpleasant-looking — and slow and expensive to make.

But in The Star's shop today is the very newest machine of offset — a machine developed only a year ago, which makes brilliant, white proofs of ad pastes, architectural drawings, or anything else on paper, and makes them fast and cheap.

The machine in our shop is only the 97th to enter the United States, the 7th in the Southwest, and the 1st in Arkansas. It is Eastman Kodak's Auto Processor, Model Q-233 — and only this morning I saw it "do its stuff" marvelously.

Here to set the machine up for us are three Eastman technicians: Robert A. Buchanan, sales supervisor for industrial markets, Eastman Kodak Co., Dallas; Fred R. Spears, technical sales representative, same office; and Gordon L. Price of Tulsa, also headquartered with Eastman at Dallas.

That such a machine should be in our town today, although unknown anywhere in the world only a little more than a year ago, is evidence of the blinding speed at which invention and discovery are moving in this 20th Century.

LBJ's Price Guidelines Are Flexible

By NEIL GILBRIDE AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's wage-price guidelines, it is now clear, can be rigid as a steel girder or flexible as a sheet of aluminum. Conversely, it was Big Steel that found flexibility in the White House blessing of a compromise price increase and the aluminum industry that earlier had to "knuckle under to stiff administration pressure."

But the lesson appears to remain the same: Johnson isn't kidding about enforcing the guidelines in an effort to keep inflation from chipping away the solid gains of the booming economy.

Why did Johnson let the steel industry raise some prices $2.75 per ton, while forcing a rollback in aluminum and copper price hikes just two months ago?

The key factor is productivity, the heart of the wage-price guidelines first formulated by White House economic advisers four years ago.

Productivity is the amount of steel or aluminum or any other commodity produced per man-hour, and the government figures the rate is rising 3.2 per cent a year in the economy as a whole.

Thus, the White House says, industry can raise wages 3.2 per cent a year without boosting prices.

But the guidelines leave room for flexibility in various industries.

The difference in the steel and aluminum cases, the way the government figures it, is this: Steel recently raised wages 3.2 per cent, while productivity has been rising only 3 per cent. Thus the industry was entitled to the increase which presidential economic adviser Gardner Ackley described as "inconsequential" — about one-tenth of 1 per cent.

But in the aluminum industry, despite recent wage increases of 3 per cent, productivity has been climbing at something like 5 per cent a year.

Thus, under the guidelines, aluminum could even afford to cut prices, provided a laborer doesn't eat away the other 2 per cent of productivity increase.

The administration doesn't care how labor and management slice up the pie of increased productivity.

"But when a disagreement between management and labor is resolved by passing the bill to the rest of the economy, the bill is paid in depreciated currency to the ultimate advantage of no one," the guidelines state.

Winthrop Files as Candidate for Governor

Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Winthrop Rockefeller filed as a Republican candidate for governor today and called on Arkansans to brush away the "giant cobweb of apathy and inefficiency" covering the present administration.

Rockefeller set his three major goals — better education, more jobs and improved roads and highways.

The multi-millionaire farmer-businessman paid his filing fee at Republican headquarters, then went to the secretary of state's office to complete the formality of filing.

He became the first candidate for governor of either party. Potential Democratic candidates are holding back to see whether Gov. Orval E. Faubus seeks a seventh term.

Faubus defeated Rockefeller Nov. 3, 1964, in the most bitterly fought general election contest in the state's history.

Rockefeller noted in a six-page statement issued when he filed he got 44 per cent of the vote in that election. He said those who voted for him indicated two things—desire for a change and "confidence in me and the two-party system of government."

Rockefeller said he would not waste time in the coming campaign answering "wild, emotional and untrue charges" as he did in the fall of 1964.

Every Man's Castle in Spain Is His Memory, Such a Castle Does Have Some Advantages

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every man's castle in Spain is his memory.

Such a castle has certain advantages. You can spend as much or as little time in it as you choose. It has no mortgage. You don't have to pay rent, taxes or upkeep. But the longer you live the more rooms there are in that castle. It keeps getting bigger all the time.

In any case, your castle of memories is pretty sizable if you can look back and remember when —

At night, as you stared up at the bedroom ceiling, the reflected light from a car passing outside revealed leering faces in the wallpaper.

A mother's afraid to leave the family cat alone in the room with a baby for fear it would suck away the infant's breath. If something broke, you could always get the hired man to fix it — for half a dollar or less.

Unless the preacher put a lot of fire and brimstone in his sermon, his congregation felt he had let them down. You couldn't denounce the devil too often in those days. People felt he was putting in a 24-hour day tempting them individually.

Here in Manhattan, the horse cars were a slow form of transportation — but the horses never went on strike.

Some farm women hated to visit a city doctor because it made them nervous to ride up to his office in an elevator.

A favorite sport in a small town was watching the local pool shark give a smart aleck traveling salesman his comeuppance.

Only gypsy women and high society ladies had pierced ears. Dogs ate table scraps and went through life without ever shaking paws with a veterinarian.

People would travel miles in a horse and buggy to listen to a politician make a speech from the back end of a wagon. After all, amusement was pretty limited.

It was firmly believed by many that bankers earned most of their money by rubbing oil on phans and foreclosing on widows.

Most Americans were more afraid of another depression than another war.

The most awe-inspiring event at a state fair was the balloon ascension.

One of the predictable things about life was that a kid would have his tonsils taken out before he was old enough to wear long pants.

Girls with long hair combed it — regularly. Washed it regularly, too.

Breakfast Cost Almost $100

SPRINGVILLE, Utah (AP) — Jean Wightman's crunchy breakfast cost almost $100.

That extra crackle didn't attract much attention until her daughter, Linda Barthelmew, launched a search for her contact lenses. She told her mother she had left them in a bowl in the cupboard.

"A couple of bites seemed extra tough," Mrs. Wightman said, "but I just kept on chewing."

Texarkanian Seeks Seat Harris Quit

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — A 29-year-old Texarkanian attorney who has declared his candidacy for Congress said today that criticism of the U.S. Supreme Court should be more reasoned and responsible.

Richard S. Arnold, who says he will seek the 4th District congressional seat when Oren Harris retires, said it is a citizen's right and duty to criticize decisions with which he disagrees.

"But the criticism should be temperate and informed, instead of emotional," Arnold told a civic club.

"The careless habit of labeling the court 'Communist' or 'athiest' whenever one happens to disagree with them," Arnold said, are "poor substitutes for thought."

Arnold, former law clerk to Justice William J. Brennan Jr. in 1960-61, said the court, like any other human institution, is fallible.

Congressional Panel Plans to Question Direct U.S. Hanoi Diplomatic Contact Today in Washington

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel planned to question CIA Director William F. Raborn today on the newly announced direct U.S. diplomatic contact with Hanoi.

The Central Intelligence Agency chief was to brief a joint subcommittee on the CIA at mid-afternoon on the Johnson administration's Viet Nam peace offensive.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk had been scheduled to brief the House Foreign Affairs Committee this morning on the Viet Nam situation. But he left for India shortly after midnight as a member of the U.S. delegation to the funeral of Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri.

Presidential press secretary Bill D. Moyers disclosed the U.S.-North Vietnamese contact late Monday but refused to tell more — including how, when or where it came about.

It was learned that a U.S. diplomat met for a few minutes with a Hanoi representative and handed him a message concerning U.S. proposals for peace in Viet Nam.

The two officials were reported to have exchanged routine remarks, but not to have engaged in any substantive negotiations.

Johnson has offered unconditional discussions. To this the Communists have not yet given a significant response through diplomatic channels. It was stated. Publicly, the Reds are continuing to berate the United States as the aggressor in Viet Nam.

The U.S.-North Vietnamese meeting was said to have occurred some time ago Johnson's current peace campaign began Dec. 24 with the halt in air strikes against North Viet Nam targets.

Hanoi's receipt of the U.S. communication this time — during last May's bombing pause it refused a U.S. message sent through the British — was not regarded as significant here pending a reply from the North Vietnamese capital.

At least a dozen Communist and non-Communist countries have both U.S. and North Vietnamese diplomats accredited at their capitals. While Moyers declined to hint at the site of the contact, he lifted the administration's secrecy on its diplomatic efforts slightly when asked about the statement of three Americans just returned from an unauthorized trip to Hanoi.

The White House spokesman said the three — Yale Professor Staughton Lynd and two others — were "incompletely informed" in asserting that there had been no direct U.S. government contact with Hanoi. Moyers said it was a "safe deduction" that there had been direct contact.

Moyers also said U.S. Ambassador-at-Large W. Averell Harriman is going to Saigon, but he didn't know what the response would be if Harriman were invited to Hanoi.

While administration sources said the direct contact disclosure did not signify a change in the immediate diplomatic or military situation, the White House statement heightened already intense congressional interest in what might be done about Viet Nam.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who headed a 13-capital tour by five senators late last year, called this new report "a hopeful sign."

Mansfield said he had no word from either the White House or the State Department on the development.

"But it speaks well for the intensive (peace) efforts made by the President not only over the past two months but over the last eight months," he said.

The Mansfield group said in a formal report released last week that chances for a just, negotiated settlement are slim.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., one of those who accompanied Mansfield on the trip, said he knew nothing of the contact.

"I hope it is true," he said. "I hope it is a first step toward further understanding between the conflicting parties."

The Senate Republican Policy Committee arranged a luncheon at which Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen expected to sound out GOP sentiment on Viet Nam in the light of the new development.

India's Shastri Succumbs to Heart Attack

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's new prime minister, Gulzarilal Nanda, promised today to carry through the agreement with Pakistan his fallen predecessor, Lal Bahadur Shastri, hammered out a few hours before he died of a heart attack.

Shastri's frail body was flown to New Delhi for a state funeral Wednesday in this troubled land of 460 million people he had governed for 19 stormy months after the death of Jawaharlal Nehru.

Shastri, 61, died early today in the Soviet city of Tashkent. The 5-foot-2, 110-pound prime minister had signed a limited peace pact Monday with Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan agreeing to pull their forces back from territory seized during the September war between India and Pakistan.

Nanda in a nationwide broadcast said Shastri died "after successfully concluding a mighty effort for peace. We shall honor the agreement he made and implement it faithfully."

A Soviet plane bore the remains of the humble-born little leader across the Hindu Kush Mountains to India's dusty plains.

Ayub Khan, whose forces fought Indian troops in a bloody 22-day undeclared war last September, and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who has host to the Tashkent conference, helped carry Shastri's coffin to the plane in the Soviet Asian city.

Kosygin left shortly after to attend the funeral. Ayub returned to Rawalpindi, the Pakistani capital.

Shastri's body will be cremated beside the sacred Jumna River in New Delhi.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Secretary of State Dean Rusk flew from Washington for the funeral. They were accompanied by two former U.S. ambassadors to India, Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ia., and John Kenneth Galbraith.

Queen Elizabeth II sent Earl Mountbatten, last viceroy and first governor general of India, to represent her.

Tributes to Shastri poured in from many parts of the world. President Johnson said his death was a "grievous blow to the hopes of mankind for peace and progress."

He said Shastri had "proved a fitting successor to Pandit Nehru by holding aloft the highest ideals of Indian democracy."

Kosygin hailed Shastri as "a great humanitarian of our time."

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, attending the Commonwealth conference on Rhodesia in Nigeria, said the loss of Shastri "will be felt throughout the Commonwealth, and indeed everywhere. His qualities of statesmanship, sincerity and integrity are valued."

Council members agreed to consider the proposal at tonight's regular meeting.

Cong Escapes Pinch of Big U. S. Force

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Large forces of disappearing today in two big Viet Cong hide-outs northwest of Saigon and in the central highlands near the Cambodian frontier after the bulk of guerrillas once more had escaped into the jungles.

For U. S. officers the operation by more than 8,000 Americans and Australians 35 miles from the capital was particularly annoying. Although they raised the Viet Cong death toll to 84 and captured 38 in the four days of Operation Crimp, they had hoped for far better results from the biggest American offensive of the war.

Their goal was to snare a Communist regiment on the edge of the Iron Triangle, an old guerrilla redoubt that has been Communist territory since the days of the French Indochina war. But only rear-guard elements put up a fight while the main enemy force vanished.

Paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade took on one guerrilla band in a brisk fight Monday and killed 29 Communists, U. S. spokesmen reported. Another 16 bodies were found after an air attack.

Soldiers of the 1st Infantry Division killed six more guerrillas in a 20-minute gun battle when the Reds tried to protect a large tunnel containing 15 bales of cotton and six tons of rice.

While U. S. troops explored a maze of tunnels underneath more than 100 houses in the area, soldiers of the Royal Australian Regiment reported killing three Viet Cong in small actions in the afternoon and finding five more bodies.

"Only light, sporadic contact in the whole battle area" by tonight.

Equally frustrating was an eight-day search for guerrillas by the U. S. 1st Cavalry, Airborne, Division in the central highlands on the Cambodian frontier, not far from the Ia Drang Valley where the Flying Horsemen battled it out with North Vietnamese regulars last November.

This time the Communists hurriedly pulled out, abandoning four rest camps capable of accommodating 3,000 guerrillas. The cavalrymen destroyed the camps.

The operation netted eight Communists captured. Some of the captives were identified as members of the 32nd and 66th North Vietnamese regular regiments. There also were reports that an anti-aircraft battalion with 18 Chinese machine guns had been in the area.

As the Americans crashed into one campsite, they saw a squad of armed men in a patch of khaki and black uniforms flee across the Tongle, San River, the border with Cambodia 40 miles west of Pleiku. A big cooking kettle still simmered. A Viet Cong brigadier general left behind a small satchel with a single star pinned to it and his toothbrush and paste inside.
